

Invitation to Kiel

The Max Rubner-Institut (Location Kiel) (www.mri.bund.de) invites you to participate in the 1st Kiel Food Science Symposium and to submit contributions for oral presentations. The symposium will be held from May 18-19, 2010 at the Max Rubner-Institut in Kiel (Hermann-Weigmann-Str. 1). It will start at 1:00 pm on May 18, 2010 and ends at 1:00 pm on May 19, 2010.

Official language of the symposium will be English.

A half-day national workshop with a strict focus on dairy science („Kieler Milchvormittag“) will precede the conference on the morning of May 18, 2010 at the same venue (9:00-12:00 am). It is possible to participate in this workshop (language: German) by separate registration (see separate announcement).

Scope of the symposium

The 1st Kiel Food Science Symposium succeeds the nationally recognized „Kieler Milchtage“ conference and will be similarly organized in a 2-year rhythm. The aim of this international symposium is:

- ♦ to offer a scientific platform for representatives from academia, industry, food authorities and policy,
- ♦ to stimulate the presentation of up-to-date research activities,
- ♦ to obtain information on new developments and
- ♦ to exchange views with colleagues from many countries on scientific progress and applications.

The symposium will address various aspects (chemistry, physics, technology, hygiene & microbiology) of scientific research on:

- ♦ Functional Food (first day)
  - ♦ Food Safety (second day)
- with a focus on milk and seafood.

Invited keynote speakers

Internationally recognized experts have accepted invitations to present keynote lectures:

- ♦ Prof. R.J. FitzGerald, University of Limerick, IRE: functional milk proteins
- ♦ Dr. J.B. Luten, Norwegian Institute of Food, Fisheries and Aquaculture Research, NO: marine functional food
- ♦ Prof. R. Stephan, University of Zürich, CH: Cronobacter sakazakii pathogens
- ♦ Dr. K. Neuhaus, Technical University of Munich, DE: ecology of food-borne pathogens

How to get to the symposium

Kiel is the capital city of the most northern federal state in Germany (Schleswig-Holstein) located at the beautiful Kiel Fjord bay of the Baltic Sea. With its maritime flair, Kiel is also well-known as the world capital of sailing („Kiel Sailing City“). Kiel can be reached conveniently by all kinds of public transport facilities:

- ♦ by airplane to Hamburg airport or to Lübeck airport. An hourly-served bus shuttle is connecting Hamburg airport with Kiel city. Hourly served train connections are also linking Kiel with Hamburg and Lübeck.
- ♦ by ferry from Sweden and Norway.
- ♦ by car via A 215 motorway which ends close to the city centre.

Accommodation

The Max Rubner-Institut – Location Kiel is in the city centre in walking distance to the harbour and to the central station. A number of hotels of various categories are in close vicinity of the symposium venue. For your convenience, hotels are listed on the official web site of Kiel and can be booked online:

www.kiel.de (go to: „Touristik“).

We intend to make pre-bookings at selected hotels in Kiel – details will follow in the 2nd Circular.
